The town of Solaize is located at the southernmost point of the conurbation (except for Givors-Grigny). Its territory is made up of two geographical areas:

- > The alluvial plain, in the west, comprising meander cutoffs and natural spaces along the Rhône, where globally renowned research and development centers (IFP NEW ENERGY, TOTAL) in the chemical and energy sectors are based.
- > A vast plateau, in the east, comprising agricultural land and residential subdivisions that extend to the southeast in an urban sprawl to the Saint-Symphorien-d'Ozon town limits. It has a strong village identity.

Solaize is also characterized by a peri-urban development: numerous residential and industrial areas are located throughout the territory.
